Dave Ridder was born and raised in the Chicago suburbs. His devout parents were heavily involved in the life of their local church. As a result of their witness, Dave trusted Christ as his Savior at a very early age. In preparation for ministry, Dave attended Wheaton College where he earned a bachelor's degree in Biblical Studies and Philosophy in 1978. He also holds Master of Divinity and Doctor of Ministry degrees from Trinity Evangelical Divinity School.

Dave served in pastoral ministry in Kalamazoo, Michigan (1981-1984), and Newtown, Pennsylvania (1984-2007), then as Dean and Vice President of Bethel Seminary (2007-2011). In 2011 he transitioned back to pastoral ministry in Bernegat, New Jersey. Dave and his wife, Diane, have three married children and five grandchildren.

Josh Charette is married to Katie and has three children (Alex, Aidan and Ella). Josh is of Turtle Mountain Chippewa and Norwegian descent. He also holds a Master of Divinity from Covenant Theological Seminary and is ordained in the Presbyterian Church in America (PCA).

Josh has pastored in Colorado Springs, Colorado and Cody, Wyoming. Nabeel Jabbour is originally from Lebanon. He and his family represented Jesus in Egypt for fifteen years. He and his family moved to Colorado Springs in January 1991. Since 1997, the Jabbour's have been U.S. citizens.

Although Dr. Jabbour comes from an Arab Christian background, for the first fifty years of his life, Muslims were his neighbors, teachers, friends, roommates, and students. Dr. Jabbour learned to put on Muslim worldview lenses and to see the world through their eyes. Because he has lived in the United States since 1991, he has come to understand both the Arab and Muslim world on one hand and the American and Christian world on the other. He has learned to interpret the "strange" phenomenon of Islam and Islamic Fundamentalism to people in the West, and especially to Christians. Today he is an adjunct professor at five seminaries and a lecturer at churches and missions conferences.

Pedro Sanchez was born in Oaxaca, Mexico. His dad was killed, and his mother could not raise 3 kids. At age 5, Pedro was living in a tree (literally) when a concerned family took him in. Then he went to stay with a relative who needed a "worker." Pedro never had a stable home life and worked and attended school when possible. At the first possible opportunity, he crossed the border illegally. Pedro focused on making money, purposing to better his life. After several years as an illegal alien, drifting from migrant field to field and struggling through unsuccessful relationships, he was invited to church where he heard the gospel and accepted Christ as Savior. In the mid 1990's Pedro came to Montana and worked at Big Sky Mushroom where he met and married a US citizen who assisted him in becoming legal, but unfortunately divorced and left Pedro, taking their son (Pedro Jr.) to Missouri with her parents. Pedro came to join the other Mexican migrant workers to be mentored through the Mission Department at Lone Rock Bible Church, meeting at the Richardson residence where Pedro has resided for 11 years. In 2009, Pedro became a US Citizen. He works for Schrock Construction supporting his extended family. He travels to Mexico each year and is instrumental to the Mexican Ministry.
